Old Dominion University seeks to promote an expanded awareness and understanding of the nations and cultures of Asia, to support and encourage research on Asia, and to make available resources to enable better understanding and more effective interaction between organizations and individuals in the Hampton Roads area and those in Asia.

To achieve these goals, the Institute of Asian Studies initiates and coordinates the development and operation of special programs, and administers a minor and major (beginning in Fall 2004) in Asian Studies. It also explores and maintains cooperative relationships with higher education institutions and other organizations within the United States and throughout Asia in order to enhance Asian Studies programs in this university and region.

The institute director is advised by the Asian Studies Advisory Committee and works closely with the Office of International Programs regarding scholarships and study abroad programs and opportunities.

The Executive Director

Dr. Qiu Jin is the Director of the Institute of Asian Studies. She is also an Associate Professor of History and International Studies and the Director of the ODU China Center at Old Dominion University. She earned her PhD in History from the University of Hawaii in 1995. In 1995-1996, she held a post-doctoral fellowship at the Center for Chinese Studies at the University of California at Berkeley. She specializes in Chinese history and specifically in the Cultural Revolution. Dr. Jin is the author of The Culture of Power: The Lin Biao Incident in the Cultural Revolution (Stanford University Press, 1999), the editor of the two-two volumes of Difficult Years: A Memoir of General Wu Faxian (in Chinese), and the co-editor of A Modern and Contemporary History of China, Volume I-II, trans. (Beijing: People’s Education Press, 2003-04). She has also published book chapters and peer-reviewed articles in journals such as Pacific Review, the Historiography: East and West, Journal of Chinese Political Science, and Modern China Studies.
The ODU China Center

2010 saw the launch of the ODU China Center. The mission of the ODU China Center is to “to promote and coordinate research, cultural exchanges, and academic programs in China-related Studies; to enhance mutual understanding of the two cultures; and to facilitate economic and business cooperation between China, other Chinese societies, and the United States with particular emphases on the Commonwealth of Virginia. “

One of the first events hosted by the ODU China Center was a reception held at the Baron and Ellin Gordon Art Gallery. Jim Cheng, the Virginia Secretary of Commerce and Trade, was the guest of honor. There were several faculty members in attendance. In addition to a talk by Jim Cheng, presentations were delivered by Qiu Jin, the director of the ODU China Center; Gilbert Yochum, the dean of the College of Business and Public Administration; and Wayne Talley, an ODU professor of economics. Talks focused on economic relations between Virginia and China; how the ODU China Center could be helpful in developing those relations; and the importance of international trade to Hampton Roads.

The ODU China Center also hosted a Chinese New Year Party at the Jade Villa Restaurant in Virginia Beach. This event was attended by students, faculty, and members of the community. Dishes served included Peking duck, long life noodles, and sweet and sour fish. This year is the year of the rabbit.

This summer, The ODU China Center hosted a faculty trip to China. They visited Beijing where they saw the Hongqiao Pearl market, Liulichang Street, the Forbidden City, Tiananmen square, and an opera at the Huguang Guild Hall. They then went to X’ian, where they visited a Ming dynasty city wall, terracotta soldiers, and Huaqing hot spring. They then went to Hangzhou, where they visited the Lingyin temple, the Liuhe pagoda, and the Mei Jia Wu Tea village. They then went to Shanghai, where they visited the Shanghai museum, the Bund, and the Jade Buddha Temple. They also visited the river town of Zhujiajiao.

Roundtable Discussion with Darden College of Education

On November 7, 2012 the China Center held a roundtable discussion with the Darden College of Education. The guest speaker was Dr. Zhao of the University of Oregon. ODU students were able to learn about the Chinese education system and compare it to the US own system. Around 30 students attended.

Professor Dai Attends Association of Chinese Criminology and Criminal Justice in the United States (ACCCJUS) Meeting

This November Dr. Mengyan Dai of the Department of Sociology and Criminal Justice attend a meeting of the Association of Chinese Criminology and Criminal Justice in the United Sates in Chicago, IL. Founded in 2010 ACCCJUS seeks to promote criminology and criminal justice research, teaching and learning on China-Taiwan related topics among academic communities in the US, greater China, and the rest of the world.

Professor Dai also published an article in the Asian Journal of Criminology, I published an article with Jeffrey Ian Ross, titled “the Dissemination of Criminological and Criminal Justice Knowledge and Practice: A Profile of People’s Republic of China Scholars Who Earn Doctorates in the United States.”
Student Clubs

The clubs provide opportunities for students to exchange views of their respective cultures, customs, and traditions to promote mutual understanding. Members are drawn from the student body, faculty of Old Dominion University, and from the surrounding Hampton Roads Area.

APASU

Founded in 1998, APASU (Asian Pacific American Student Union) strives to promote Asian awareness throughout the local student and faculty community at Old Dominion University. APASU proudly celebrates the diversity and commonalities of Asian Americans and provides a social support network for members. As a pan-Asian educational-based organization, APASU primarily discusses social and political Asian American issues and many international issues. Though APASU’s name entitles itself to Asian Pacific Americans, membership is not limited or restricted to only members of Asian descent. In fact, the enormous diversity each member brings to the organization makes APASU unique to the ODU campus. Thus, APASU welcomes all members of the community regardless of race, religion, or national origin. Through good fellowship, service and events that showcase the unique values of various ethnic cultures, we aim to positively reflect the essence of being Asian American. Lastly, APASU intends to promote an individual's social, educational, and professional development through diverse programming and conference attendance.

Nichei-Bei Club
Nichi Bei is a club where students who are interested in Japanese culture can come learn more about Japan, its customs, and its people. We try to have programs that promote the education and enjoyment of Japanese culture. Our most frequent programs are Karaoke nights—where anyone can sing in any language—and movie nights, where we show Japanese movies with English subtitles. We also have many students who take Japanese language come to learn from native speakers that join our club. At general meetings, we ask our club members their opinions on what sorts of things they’d like to learn about Japanese culture. For instance, we did a tea ceremony last year, where club members learned about the intricacies of the (very complicated and very traditional) Japanese tea ceremony. This year, club members are interested in how to dress in and wear the Kimono; how to make sushi; how to write calligraphy; and sword cleaning. Coming up this Friday, September 30th, we’re having a movie night in Kaufman Hall 225. For students who study Japanese language, we have a study group every Tuesday from 3 to 5 pm in the LLC (BAL 3061). On October 28th, we’ll be having a Japanese café, where students can learn more about Japan from Nichi Bei club members and native speakers alike. Please come join us! どうもありがとうございます！(Thank you very much!)

Korean Student Association
The Korean Student Association (KSA) aims to represent the Korean student group at ODU.
Having been revived in early 2011, the KSA’s purpose is to bring together a fellowship among Koreans and Americans who are interested in Korean culture at ODU. The KSA co-sponsors numerous multicultural activities such as the International Festival in the spring and the Asian Season in the fall to educate the community at ODU about Korea. The KSA also plans to host some events (e.g., national holiday cerebrations) to foster cultural exchange and relationships among members throughout the year. The KSA is open to all students and faculty at ODU. For more information, please contact Mr. Jinhyuk Kim (jkimx024@odu.edu) and 757-339-5390

Study Abroad

Students minoring or majoring in Asian Studies can spend a year, semester, or summer studying abroad in a variety of Asian countries, including China, Japan, Korea, and the Philippines. Internship opportunities are available in China, Japan, Korea, Philippines, Taiwan, Vietnam, Indonesia, and Thailand.

Old Dominion University encourages all students to consider studying abroad for a summer, semester, or full year as part of their academics experience. Study abroad can enhance any major by challenging students to adapt to a new academic system and to infuse their studies with a global perspective. In addition, the culture and language learning opportunities which are offered by study abroad are unparalleled.
