CALL TO ORDER AND UNIVERSITY AUDIT DEPARTMENT BRIEFING

Rector Smith called the meeting to order at 9:45 a.m. and introduced Amanda Skaggs, University Audit Executive. Ms. Skaggs thanked the Rector for inviting her to speak to the Board about the role of the University Audit Department. She said that the department provides objective and independent assessments and advice for improving operations that will advance the goals and objectives of the University with a focus on risk management, internal controls and governance. At the same time, the auditors are a part of the University community and engage, partner and collaborate with others across campus to recommend feasible solutions to arising business challenges. Internal audit activity began at ODU in the mid-1970s and the department has five auditors.

Ms. Skaggs noted that auditors have a variety of skills, educational backgrounds and expertise and continuing education is key to enhancing knowledge, skills and competencies. Certifications are highly encouraged, and of the ten certifications held by her team, eight were achieved while working for the department. While auditors focus on internal controls, it is management who is responsible for these controls. An internal audit can independently assess the effectiveness of internal controls and make recommendations to management who propose corrective action that is tracked through completion.

Ms. Skaggs reviewed the audit planning process and the audit process itself and shared the list of current audit engagements. The University Audit Department is also charged with the responsibility to investigate internal complaints of fraud, waste and abuse and ODU complaints received from the Commonwealth’s Fraud, Waste and Abuse Hotline. She noted that the topics most recently covered include nepotism, outside employment, excessive pay, financial aid fraud, and leave abuse, with leave abuse being the most common.

Ms. Skaggs explained the difference between internal and external auditors, the reporting relationship between the department, the Board, the President and the Office of the State Inspector General, and the quality assurance and improvement program that includes annual self-audits and the an external Quality Assurance Review every five years.

The Board recessed at 10:05 a.m. for meetings of the standing committees.

RECONVENE AND CLOSED SESSION

The Rector reconvened the meeting at 1:40 p.m. and said that the order of business was being modified to accommodate Ms. Jones and Ms. Kemper, who need to leave shortly for the airport.

The Rector recognized Ms. Kirk, who made the following motion, “Madam Rector, I move that this meeting be convened in closed session, as permitted by Virginia Code Section 2.2-3711(A) (1), for the purpose of discussion, consideration, or interviews of prospective candidates for employment in the football program.” The motion was duly seconded and unanimously approved by all members present and voting (Allmond, Bradley, Broermann, Corn, Dabney, Decker, Harris, Hill, Jones, Kemper, Kirk, Mugler).
RECONVENE IN OPEN SESSION AND FOIA CERTIFICATION

At the conclusion of the closed session, the meeting was reconvened in open session, at which time the Rector called for the Freedom of Information Act certification of compliance that (1) only public business matters lawfully exempted from the open meeting requirements under the Freedom of Information Act were discussed and (2) only such public business matters as were identified in the motion by which the closed session was convened were heard, discussed or considered. The certification of compliance vote was 12 in favor and none opposed (Allmond, Bradley, Broermann, Corn, Dabney, Decker, Harris, Hill, Jones, Kemper, Kirk, Mugler).

STANDING COMMITTEE REPORTS

ACADEMIC AND RESEARCH ADVANCEMENT COMMITTEE

The Rector call on Ms. Jones for the report of the Academic and Research Advancement Committee. Ms. Jones reported that the Committee met in closed session to discuss a recommendation for tenure for a faculty member. Following closed session, committee members approved by unanimous vote the aware of tenure to a faculty member. The following resolution was brought forth as a recommendation of the Academic and Research Advancement Committee and was unanimously approved by all members present and voting (Allmond, Bradley, Broermann, Corn, Dabney, Decker, Harris, Hill, Jones, Kemper, Kirk, Mugler).

MID-YEAR TENURE RECOMMENDATION

RESOLVED, that upon the recommendation of the Provost, the Academic and Research Advancement Committee recommends that the Board of Visitors approve the award of tenure and promotion to associate professor for the following faculty member at Old Dominion University. The tenure and promotion will be effective with the Spring 2020 semester.

College of Sciences

Daniel J. Barshis
Department of Biological Sciences

DR. DANIEL J. BARSHIS

DEPARTMENT OF
BIOLOGICAL SCIENCES

Analysis and Recommendation:

The following contains my recommendation for the tenure and promotion application of Dr. Daniel Barshis, currently Assistant Professor in the Department of Biological Sciences in the College of Sciences.

The ODU Teaching and Research Faculty Handbook states, “The main purposes of tenure are to protect academic freedom and to enable the University to attract and retain a permanent faculty of distinction in order to accomplish its mission.” [p. 53]. The promotion to the rank of Associate Professor is based on “established high quality of performance in teaching, research, and service and pre-eminence in at least one of these areas.” [p. 33].

Dr. Daniel Barshis received a B.S. with specialization in Ecology/Environmental Science from The Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, and an M.Sc. and Ph.D. with specialization in Ecology, Evolution and Conservation Biology from University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa, Hawai‘i. Prior to joining Old Dominion University in December 2013, he was Assistant Project Scientist, National Marine Fisheries Service, University of California, Santa Cruz; Postdoctoral Scholar at the Hopkins Marine Station of Stanford University; Research Assistant at the United States Geological Survey and at University of Hawai‘i at Mānoa; Research Technician at the College of the Marshall Islands, Majuro; and Agricultural Research Technician at Washington State Department of Agriculture.

Dr. Barshis has been an effective instructor in the classroom, teaching an array of courses from upper-division foundational courses in invertebrate zoology to graduate courses. Of note, he has taught eight different courses at ODU, of which six are new course offerings he developed, including advanced quantitative courses at the graduate level (Practical Computing for Biologists and Advanced Bioinformatics). He also jointly developed a course in Zymology, the microbiology and biochemistry of fermentation and brewing. He gave graduate students project team leader roles in his new course in Molecular Ecology (BIOL 453-553) so they could be peer mentors with undergraduates enrolled in the course. The dean noted she has “rarely seen such a consistent set of positive student opinion surveys, nor ones in which the response rate was so high for almost every course.” Dr. Barshis has been a prominent supporter of undergraduate research by supervising nine undergraduate researchers in his lab and five additional seminar students. He has graduated one master’s degree student (whose research has been published) and is currently supervising one Ph.D. student, who has presented her work at several professional conferences.

Dr. Barshis’s research focus is the impact of climate changes on corals, specifically how corals adapt to the increasing temperatures around them and the viability of the ecosystems that surround them. He studies the genome and proteome of these organisms to understand their stress tolerance, susceptibility, and resilience. Dr. Barshis has 12 publications since 2014, and has been very effective in securing external grant funding over $4M. He has continued a high level of productivity throughout his review cycle, with award of a prestigious National Park Service Conway Science Fellowship and as co-PI on a NOAA grant for $2.4M (ODU share $226K), both coming to fruition after his materials were sent to external reviewers, so are not included in their assessments.

External reviewers consistently praised Dr. Barshis’s record of scholarship, one stating, “Dr. Barshis’s work is of the highest quality and deserves the highest ranking,” adding that the positive reception from the research community to his work “is expressed partly by the high quality of the journals that he publishes in (either as lead author or co-author) and the strong citation count.” Another observed that the quality of his work “is illustrated in its publication in top tier journals, including such high quality, broad readership journals such as Science, Nature Climate Change, Nature Communication, Proceeding of the National Academy of Sciences, and Global Change Biology, as well as publications in top journals in his field (Molecular Biology and Evolution, Molecular Biology).” Other reviewers characterized his record of scholarship as “high quality,” “influential,” “quite impactful,” and “widely known and well-cited.” Several reviewers remarked positively upon Dr. Barshis’s successful pursuit of external funding, including this representative comment: “Dr. Barshis also has been successful in securing funding, both collaboratively and independently, receiving multiple grants from NSF [and] NOAA.” Another applauded his aggressive pursuit of external research funding, noting that “he is applying for a staggering number of grants….” Reviewers described Dr. Barshis’s national and international reputation as “very strong” and “outstanding,” indicating, “Even as a young assistant professor, he is seen as an important player in the field.” One reviewer opined that the frequency with which he is invited to collaborate with established national and international scholars is further evidence of Dr. Barshis’s positive reputation in his discipline. In conclusion, a reviewer argued, “At this stage in his career Barshis has ticked all the right boxes, he has funding, he has 1700 citations, he has a healthy h-index….Barshis is (sic) quickly become a leader in his field and will undoubtedly have a highly successful career.” Another reviewer shared his confidence that Dr. Barshis’s record to date “is just the start of a very productive career.”

Dr. Barshis has demonstrated an acceptable level of service at the departmental, college, and university level and to his profession. He is Editor for Scientific Reports (Nature Publishing Group) and Review Editor for Frontiers in Microbiology and Frontiers in Marine Science, as well as reviewer for several professional journals. He has given a commendable level of service on over 20 graduate student committees. He and his students have engaged with the community and prospective students by conducting tours of the Marine Aquatics Facility. He has been active with the Humanities Behind Bars program, and in outreach at the Virginia Aquarium as well as in Samoa.

Recommendations were received from the departmental, college, and university promotion and tenure committees, as well as from the department chair and the college dean. These different levels of review are important in providing a thorough and fair analysis of a faculty member’s contributions in the three areas of evaluation and allow for a uniform evaluation of faculty across departments and colleges. The Department Committee (12 in favor, 3 opposed, 4 abstentions), the College Committee (5-0) and the University Promotion and Tenure Committee (5-0) all voted in favor of awarding tenure and promotion. The chair and the dean also recommended Dr. Barshis for promotion with tenure.

My overall assessment of Dr. Barshis’s dossier is that he has met the requirements for tenure and promotion. In recognition of his demonstrated high level of performance in teaching, research, and service, I enthusiastically endorse the recommendations of the chair, dean and the departmental, college, and university-wide tenure and promotion committees to promote Dr. Barshis to the rank of Associate Professor with tenure in the Department of Biological Sciences.

Committee members approved by unanimous vote the request to rename the Department of Management the Department of Management and Entrepreneurship. The following resolution was brought forth as a recommendation of the Academic and Research Advancement Committee and was unanimously approved by all members present and voting (Allmond, Bradley, Broermann, Corn, Dabney, Decker, Harris, Hill, Jones, Kemper, Kirk, Mugler).

APPROVAL TO RENAME THE DEPARTMENT OF MANAGEMENT THE DEPARTMENT OF MANAGEMENT AND ENTREPRENEURSHIP

RESOLVED, that upon the recommendation of the Academic and Research Advancement Committee, the Board of Visitors approves renaming the Department of Management the Department of Management and Entrepreneurship in the Strome College of Business effective July 1, 2020.

Rationale: The Department of Management delivers the Bachelor of Science in Business Administration major and minor in management and the interdisciplinary certificate in entrepreneurship. The department has submitted a proposal to also offer an interdisciplinary minor in entrepreneurship.

Entrepreneurship research and courses build on foundation work in management in the domain of organizational behavior and strategy. Domain of entrepreneurship is so closely related to management that the professional associations (Academy of Management and Southern Management Association) have added entrepreneurship divisions. In addition, other business schools have a department of Management and Entrepreneurship, including Virginia Commonwealth University, Indiana University, Arizona State University, the University of Iowa, the University of Minnesota, and Fairleigh Dickinson University.

Given the proximity of the two fields, it is proposed to house the young and growing academic entrepreneurship program at ODU within the Management Department. The department would provide the right eco-system for research and teaching to grow entrepreneurship within ODU.
The proposed name would signal students and parents where entrepreneurship courses and curricula are housed within the University and highlight the University’s focus on entrepreneurship. It would also help attract faculty with research interests in entrepreneurship. Thus, it is proposed to rename the Department of Management the Department of Management and Entrepreneurship.

Committee members approved by unanimous vote the request to rename the Department of Ocean, Earth and Atmospheric Sciences the Department of Ocean and Earth Sciences. The following resolution was brought forth as a recommendation of the Academic and Research Advancement Committee and was unanimously approved by all members present and voting (Allmond, Bradley, Broermann, Corn, Dabney, Decker, Harris, Hill, Jones, Kemper, Kirk, Mugler).

APPROVAL TO RENAME THE DEPARTMENT OF OCEAN, EARTH AND ATMOSPHERIC SCIENCES THE DEPARTMENT OF OCEAN AND EARTH SCIENCES

RESOLVED, that, upon the recommendation of the Academic and Research Advancement Committee, the Board of Visitors approves renaming the Department of Ocean, Earth and Atmospheric Sciences the Department of Ocean and Earth Sciences in the College of Sciences effective July 1, 2020.

Rationale: The “Atmospheric” portion of the department’s name is a misnomer and misleading. There are no faculty members in the department who are “atmospheric scientists” in any dedicated sense. Furthermore, the current name can be confusing and elicits the occasional inquiry from prospective students asking about a meteorology program, which does not exist.

The proposed name not only will more accurately reflect the department’s expertise and course offerings, it is coincident with the title of the Bachelor of Science and Master of Science degrees in Ocean and Earth Sciences. Thus, it is proposed to change the rename the Department of Ocean, Earth and Atmospheric Sciences the Department of Ocean and Earth Sciences.

Committee members received information on a request for leave of absence without compensation. In the report from the Provost, Austin Ahgo presented information on faculty diversity recruitment and retention, including the following: career tracks for teaching and research faculty; steps in the faculty recruitment process; trend analysis of full-time faculty gender and ethnicity; and recruitment and retention efforts focusing on program development, department climate, community building, and universal messaging.

Ariana Wright, Director of Equity and EO/AA, discussed the role of the Office of Institutional Equity and Diversity in the review of faculty positions.

The report from the Provost also included a presentation on how the Center for High Impact Practices supports student learning inside and outside the classroom by Lisa Mayes, Executive Director of the Center, and Emily Harmon, Student Support Services Counselor. They discussed high impact practices and learning support provided by the Center and highlighted the work done by Student Support Services.

In the report from the Vice President for Research, Dr. David Bowles, Executive Director of the Virginia Institute for Spaceflight and Autonomy, provided an overview of the Institute. The Institute will ignite the Commonwealth’s unique aerospace assets on the Eastern Shore and throughout the state and will focus on growth, talent and innovation.

ATHLETICS COMMITTEE

The Rector called on Ms. Kemper for the report of the Athletics Committee. Ms. Kemper reported that Randale Richmond, Senior Associate Athletic Director for Sport Administration and Student-Athlete Welfare, briefed the Committee on the ODU student-athlete Academic Program Rate.

Jena Virga, Senior Associate Athletic Director for Development, provided an overview of the Priority Automotive Club at S.B. Ballard Stadium, which included a financial update and donor summary.

Wood Selig, Director of Athletics, reviewed the background and status of Name, Image, and Likeness (NIL) resulting from the passing of California’s Fair Pay to Play Act.
